Lojze SLAK

Lojze Slak (1932–2011) je ustvaril novo glasbeno smer z ljudskim instrumentom – diatonično harmoniko, med ljudmi poznano pod imenom "fajtonarica", ki jo je izpopolnil s šestim basom in dodatnim, t. i. "Slakovim gumbom".

Slak je dejal... "Po dolgih turnejah, po napornih nastopih, po dolgotrajnih sestankih, po vseh malih in velikih neumnostih sveta vedno deluje name Trška gora kot balzam za dušo in telo."

Lojze Slak (1932–2011) created a new musical direction with the folk instrument – the diatonic accordion, which he enhanced with a sixth bass and an additional, so-called "Slak's button."

Slak said... "After long tours, exhausting performances, lengthy meetings, and all the small and big absurdities of the world, Trška Gora always acts as a balm for my soul and body."

O cvičku

Pravijo mu tudi slovenski vinski posebnost, saj je eno redkih vin na svetu iz rdečih in belih sort grozdja. Od leta 2001 je njegova sestava zakonsko zaščitena in nosi oznako priznanega tradicionalnega poimenovanja (PTP), ki med drugim narekuje, da se ga lahko prideluje le znotraj vinorodnega okolja Dolenjska. Zanj je značilna nizka vsebnost alkohola (do 10 % vol. alk.).

About Cviček

Known as the Slovenian wine specialty, it is one of the rare wines globally crafted from both red and white grape varieties. Since 2001, it has had legally protected wine composition and the designation of recognized traditional denomination (in Slovene PTP), which among other things dictates that it can only be produced within the Dolenjska wine region. It also boasts a low alcohol content, which is up to 10% by volume.

Društvo vinogradnikov Trška gora od leta 2012 vsako leto v maju organizira tradicionalni Pohod po Slakovi poti, ki pritegne številne obiskovalce iz vse Slovenije.

Since 2012, the Trška Gora Winemakers Association has organized the traditional Slak's Trail Hike every May, attracting numerous visitors from all over Slovenia.
